Onward!

This issue of the Pivot is dedicated to the creative urge which alone make us seem more than the existing humans we seem to be. This editorial is in honor of those who strive with their greatest assets—hand and brain—to create new worlds for themselves. New life must come out of us, born of our struggles with ourselves. The world spirit must reflect through us: their movements died in our bodies. Cosmos sings in ourselves and likewise we sing in Cosmos. Man is the symbol of sweeping and enduring victories translated in our defeats.

In self-expression is life. It is ours to fight and to laugh and to create.

It makes very little difference whether in future life we succeed or fail, for we have reason for existence if we know ourselves and express ourselves individually. Indescribably, life is the search of man for himself, and he who is a leader among groups is considered the best.

Art influences life as much as life influences art. We who are to live and create have as our most effective tools our pen and brush. Mere daubing is not enough. Higher education in the varied fields puts a finishing touch to an already cultural background. Life can be compared to a social register climber—always striving for a finesse. Let us be the instrument of huge and mysterious urges which drive life on. Let us shout our art like the rumbling of thunder that lets nothing interfere.

Sadye Tischler.

Our Advisers

Our heartfelt thanks and appreciation go to Dr. Henry M. Goldstein and Mr. J. Earl Griffith for their kindly advice and instruction toward the issue of the first 1936 Pivot.

Goodbye, Alma Mater!

Goodbye, Alma Mater!

It has been wonderful to be enclosed in your friendly walls for four happy years. No one has known the joys and sorrows which have come to pass within your walls but you. Here we have done our poorest and our best. Here we have failed and then risen to success. Oh, Alma Mater, we thank you for your friendly walls!

Innumerable times we have experienced that innermost joy when your name has been mentioned. In scholastics, have you not put forth our best scholars? In the government, have you not put forth our best citizens? In sports, have you not put forth our best athletes? We are proud of you, Alma Mater!

For four years we have enjoyed privileges which have not been those of other high schools. Can anyone else boast of having an electric organ and an installed amplifying system?

We have waxed in wisdom. For four years we have absorbed the history of European nations, the meaning of poetry, the rules of grammar, the shorthand vocabulary, the rules of mechanical drawing, the art of public speaking, and the battles of the American wars. Character traits have been impressed upon us. Alma Mater, you have helped to make us fine young men and women.

Our characters have been strengthened, brave, kind, and courageous, we are ready for the next big step.

Goodbye, Alma Mater!

Mary Kozowitz.

Where to Now, Central?

It is customary for the editor of the Pivot to express the sentiments of the graduating class with a regretful farewell and yet heartfelt thanks for the four years spent within Central's portals.

But it is mainly repetition when we state our feelings as the time for us to part has arrived. Central knows that we leave not with joy and happiness our Alma Mater, but with a lump in our throats. None of us will ever forget the good times and the jolly incidents which took place within her walls.

We should take a glance forward now instead of looking back at our four years. The future holds more than the past. Bygones have taught us our lessons and given us experience. Now we must shift our eyes to a broader horizon.

The keynote of reconstruction is WORK. Work is, indeed, more than the word itself implies. It can do more than medicine or rest, it creates ambition and inspiration, it makes men of weaklings.

Come on, let's go and show these old-timers what we "school kids" can do. We will restore conditions to normal again and can even improve on what was deemed in 1929 as the "top."

And so, Central, we show our gratitude to you in this manner. To go out and do justice to your honored name with our ventures and deeds is your only reward. Our hearts are filled with this desire, our dear Lady of the Hill, as we bid adieu, a bit of cheerio, and farewell.

Berne Hirschberg.

A New Dawn

When the Dawn casts her new and rosy glow
She spreads across the cloudless sky a story clear,
Those of us who care to see it here below
Will look up and read, and know no mortal fear.

Dawn starts for us many a new and hopeful day,
It will bring success for you, and for me.
Spreading across the sky, the sun's misty rays
Bring reflections of the future, its plea
For us, the seniors. A new day brings its story,
It bids us to think, not just stop today,
For a new day brings with it a new glory,
For it, work, toil, with a little play.

With staunch and hardy souls we plunge again,
again,
Our hopes renewed, we will not, must not, cannot fail,
All memories, some sad, some gay, away we'll send,
With hearts extended we say to Central, "Farewell and hail."

Edith Damiano.

It is the object of this heritary work of literary art to attempt to technicalize the emotional feelings which are fostered at this time by that most delicate and intricate subject: the matter of farewell. Much has been said, much has yet to be written, but more has yet to be extracted from the soul.

As I reach and delve frantically into my soul I seem to see a picture. It shows groups of students passing through a large portal. From all appearances they are strange to that institution. Something calls me back to reality. I have but come from the depths of my emotional being.

It is futile to write endlessly onward; writing of our happy times; of our high and soul-biting friendship; of our loved ones that we leave behind; of our numerous and frolicking antics; and of other incidents of our life at school. We know what we are leaving. It is bitterly hard to keep from shedding a tear. It is not such that we have just completed our limited time of learning, it is as though we are leaving forever a second home, a place where to share our secrets to all, perhaps also to the walls, but I must not continue.

I bid farewell to all; to the halls, to the elderly maestros, to the classrooms, to the organ, to my fellow classmates, to all that has to do with our school. Farewell, and may we again reunite in the future.

Nicholas G. Ciangio.

Must I leave all my fellow classmates?

See them no more perhaps?

Now I think of "The Old Familiar Faces,"

That I once recited in class.

Most students are happy on graduation;

But I have no reason to be,

They will have a long, long vacation,

And probably have no thoughts of me.

Vincent Carnevale.

Stone Faces

Images of granite,

Chiseled by men on heights above,

Peer down upon us . . .

Descend from your base

And give to us your knowledge and your strength!

Aids in our distress,

In stemming the onrush of the turbulent waters,

That hurl themselves with insane fury upon bursting dykes,

And portend sorrow for all.

William Disen.

From Principal to Parent

Dear Parents:

THERE IS NO SECRET IN THE MAKING OF A SUCCESS OF LIFE. You will find that it depends chiefly upon the factor of faith. In other words, faith in one's ability is what really counts. Individuals, human or animal, have natural endowments peculiar to themselves. Thinking mankind studies these endowments in the animal and uses the powers. Thinking man studies the inanimate, learns its useful properties, and utilizes them for comfort and human advantage. Faith, knowledge, and the development of mental, moral, and physical self-power, make for health and happiness through work in definitely bounded areas. Do not let your dear ones ever retard themselves in life, by loss of faith in the possible advantageous development of even their humblest life equipment. SUCCESS IN ALL UNDERTAKINGS FOLLOWS FAITH IN ONESELF.

Sincerely yours,

William Weiner

Principal.

THE ARCHON CLUB

The Archon Club is composed of those pupils who have consistently passed all of their work with marks of honor. Mr. Conkling is the adviser and the officers are: President, Antoinette Casciano; Vice-President, Margaret Hickman, and Secretary, Rae Daneshefsky.

THE BELLES LETTRES CLUB

This club aims to have students obtain a more intimate and pleasant outlook on the study of English. The faculty adviser is Mr. Barnard and the officers are: President, Doris Leach; Vice-President, Dorothy Neiman; Secretary, Audrey Young; Treasurer, Edith Damiano.

THE GIRLS' SERVICE CLUB

The aim of the club is to offer its services, wherever possible, for the welfare of the school. One of its chief functions is to help increase the scholarship fund. Miss Kaufman is the adviser and the officers are: President, Sadye Tischler; Vice-President, Sylvia Galuskin; Secretary, Helen Mancuso; Treasurer, Irene Browne.

THE BOYS' SERVICE CLUB

The Boys' Service Club is one of the oldest clubs in the school. It is composed of the "leader" type of boy who is interested in serving his school. Mr. Conovitz is adviser and the officers are: President, Tom Fiorenza; Vice-President, Pete Lardiere; Secretary and Treasurer, Rocco Vocco; Chief of Patrol, James Stamas.

THE LIBRARY GUILD

The aim of this guild is to assist the students in the school library and in this way to increase the students in reading. The faculty advisers are Miss Caprio and Miss Ward. The officers are: President, Rose Corry; Vice-President, Rita Balzarine; Secretary, Johanna Hansen; Treasurer, Carmel Farino.

TANGENT

The Tangent staff consists of a group of young journalists who edit Central's newspaper, the Tangent. The editorial board consists of Evelyn Kalakura, Nick Ciango, Olga Ewaskiw, and Florence Sawicka.

THE GREEK CLUB

The purpose of the A. E. K. Greek Club is to stimulate an interest in Greek art and culture for the Greek students of Central. Miss Oelrich is the adviser and the officers are: President, Ernest Agalias; Vice-President, James Stamas; Secretary, Athena Philia; Treasurer, John Kortaxes.

THE PHOTOPLAY CLUB

It is the purpose of the Photoplay Club to teach students about the Motion Picture industry in all its phases. Mr. Lewis is the faculty adviser and the officers are: President, Irving Linkov; Vice-President, Leo Nathans; Secretary, Florence Riker; Treasurer, Mae Murray.

THE FRENCH CLUB

The French Club is composed of students taking the French course. Extensive studies are made of French life and the language. The officers are: President, Irving Krueger; Vice-President, Lucille Federico; Secretary, Helen Tulcher; Treasurer, Eunice Gray. Miss Arnold is faculty adviser.

THE DRAMATIC CLUB

The members of this club interest themselves in the production of plays, including acting, writing, criticizing, and making their own scenery when producing a play. Miss Boutillier is the faculty adviser and the officers: President, Sid Lowenthal; Vice-President, Rae Daneshefsky; Corresponding Secretary, Dorothy Peterson; Recording Secretary, Sadye Tischler; and Treasurer, Harold Jensen.

NATURALIST CLUB

All the sciences—biology, chemistry, physics, minerology and astronomy—are represented. The faculty advisers are Mr. Harry Goldsmith, Mrs. Pressler and Miss Sadie Abrich. The officers of the club are: Joe Almacy, President; Henry Ihling, Vice-President; Thelma Anthony, Secretary, and Chester F. Bradley, Treasurer.

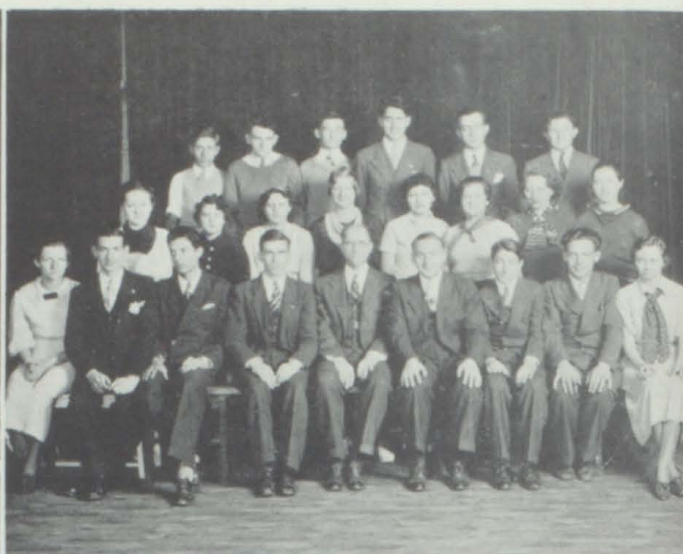

THE ITALIAN CLUB

The object of this club is to keep together the students of Central High who are of Italian parentage or ancestry and to enable these pupils to keep alive an interest in Italy. The faculty advisers are Miss Jackson and Miss Caprio, and the officers are: President, Mike DiComo; Vice-President, Nellie Lapomo; Secretary, Rose Casciane; Treasurer, Jean Scanello.

THE SALESMANSHIP CLUB

In the club meetings, good and effective selling methods are discussed and model sales talks are given by the members. Mr. Profeta is the faculty adviser and the officers are: President, Mike DiComo; Vice-President, Charles Kehoe; Secretary, Charlotte Kaplan; Treasurer, Marie Ambroselli.

THE COMMERCIAL CLUB

The purpose of the Commercial Club is to provide an opportunity for students of the commercial department to discuss current problems, plans, and methods in relation to commercial progress. Mr. Heiges is the adviser and the officers are: President, Arthur Kaplan; Vice-President, Arthur Cryer; Secretary, Tom Fiorenza; Treasurer, William Short.

THE ART CLUB

Any pupils interested in art work are eligible for membership upon submitting a sample of their work and being approved by the club members. Mrs. Hopper is the adviser and the officers are: President, Walter Vogelsberg; Vice-President, Anthony Bongo; Secretary, Vincent Carnivale; Treasurer, Edward Hewko.

THE CENTRAL HIGH RIFLE CLUB

The Rifle Club is organized to promote "better sportsmanship and better marksmanship." Mr. Murray is the adviser and the officers are: President, Fred Laible; Vice-President, Morris Krueger; Secretary, Fred Anedes; Corresponding Secretary, Alfred Harazda; Treasurer, Chester Handlewit.

THE GERMAN CLUB

This club is composed of students interested in the German language and was formed for the purpose of keeping alive the interest of Germany. The officers are: President, Walter Vogelsberg; Vice-President, Isadore Blair; Secretary, Helen Lehmkuhl; Treasurer, Lorraine Logan. The faculty adviser is Miss Oellrich.

THE BOYS' BOOSTER CLUB

This club stands back of every forward step that the school takes and is ready to "boost" all worthwhile projects of the school. The officers are: President, Robert Matz; Vice-President, William Moser; Secretary, Ed McLaughlin; Treasurer, Bob Hanlon.

AERO CLUB

The Central Aero Club has been formed under the supervision of Mr. Siegwarth to build model flying machines and enter them in airplane exhibitions.

THE T-SQUARE AND TRIANGLE CLUB

The club is formed to promote an interest in all types of engineering, drawing, and designing. It is under the guidance of Mr. Rehn and the officers are: President, Henry Ihling; Vice-President, William Wheaton; Secretary and Treasurer, Fred Laible.

We, the prospective graduates of the Class of January, 1936, being of sound mind (?) and disposing memory, do hereby declare this our last will and testament:

Item: To the school the delightful memory of our original pranks and misdemeanors.

Item: To the faculty our sincere forgiveness for all the worry they have caused us in the past four years.

Item: To Mr. Brady our sincere hope that his next homeroom class will remember to bring their excuses occasionally.

Item: To "Doc" Mones the fond memory of our brilliant extemporaneous speeches in English class.

Item: To future history students Mr. Conovitz's unexhaustible supply of history stories.

Item: To the Class of June 1936 the Indian Head penny left us by the class of June 1935.

Item: To the Class of June 1936 we leave the space next to where our pictures will hang in Rogue's Gallery.

Item: Following the precedent set by our forebears, we do hereby leave to Senior B's, Miss Martin's office. To all students, we leave Mr. Wiener's help and guidance, to cutters the seat around the flag-pole, and to the Freshies, we leave the battle-scarred furniture, and our lockers with locks that go with them.

Item: To the Freshies a book entitled "The Art of Sleeping in Class" which no longer is of any use to us.

Item: Bill, the elevator man, the peaceful quietude from not answering our questions of "Well, why can't you take us up on the elevator?"

Item: To all 4A speakers (except Sadye Tischler, she has her own) we leave a good sturdy platform on which to stand when making your great orations.

Item: To all fortunates who have a lunch period our own heterogeneous cafeteria.

Item: To all those without lunch periods the ten minutes during P. M. homeroom if you haven't by then starved to death.

Item: To all those who over-sleep we leave Miss Gorden's office and her penny late slips.

Item: To all the graceful (?) lads and lassies, the social dancing gym classes and to the rest of you may we say never give up hope!

Having disposed of all of our valuable possessions (and some that we haven't) we do hereby appoint Mr. Monkey Shine the executor.

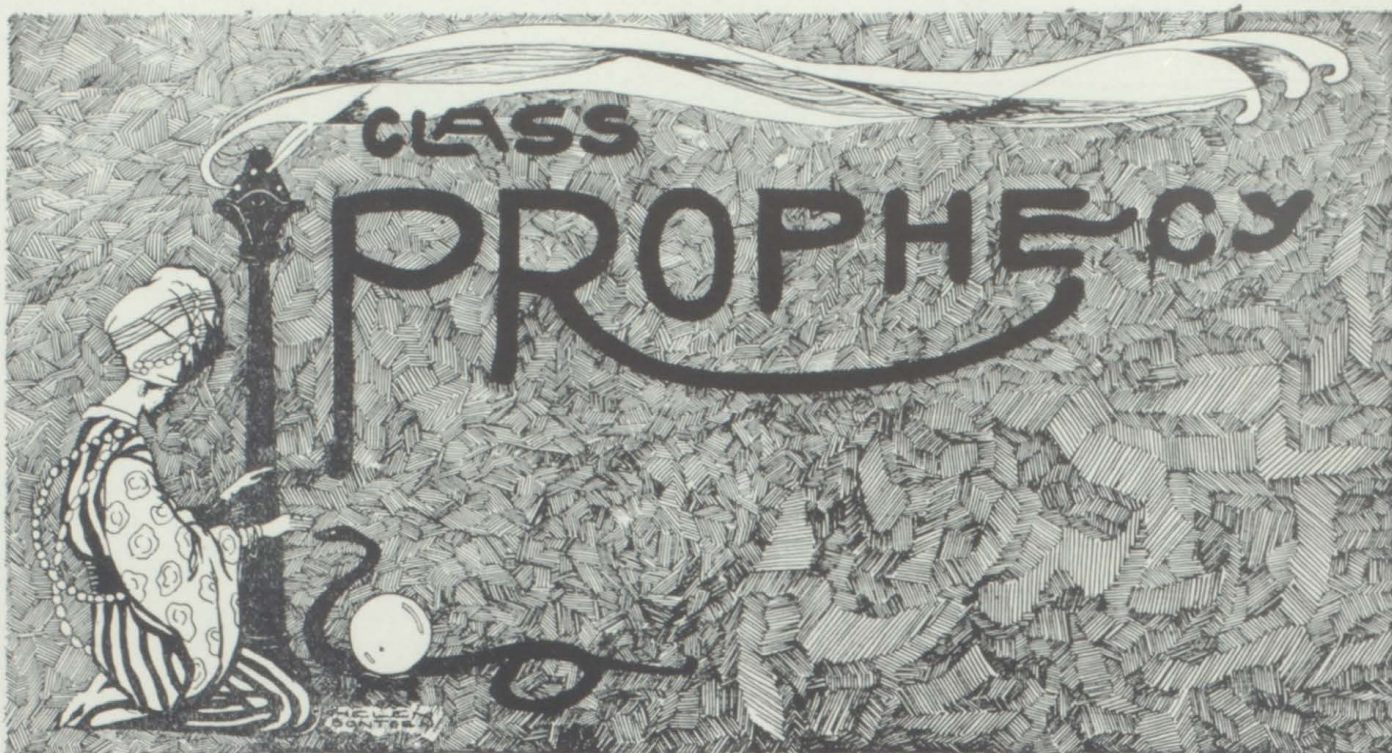

We do hereby put our sign and seal (a big ink blot) and declare this our last will and testament.

CLASS OF JANUARY 1936.

SELMA RAPHAEL.

The day of the big trial had arrived, fifteen years of experimentation with patient suffering and trying tolerance. At last, the hopes of the entire world were to be fulfilled, in an invention no bigger than a radio and no more expensive. It was the greatly publicized radioactive television receiver that could picture any scene in action at that present moment anywhere in the universe.

There were five scientists in the radio laboratory. They had all graduated from Central, January 1936, and were very close in their business connections. There were Berne Hirschberg, the great promoter, who had originated the idea; George Mussig, Ernest Rueger and Spiro Paulos, the famous radio engineers, who had perfected the invention to a success. Last but not least was Jack Runyon, the eminent chemist, who applied his electro-chemical genius to this colossal masterpiece.

Naturally, the first tryout would be recorded for ages ahead so that it was necessary to think of a good plan for the projection of the television eye. Professor Runyon immediately suggested looking up the class of January 1936 and the others readily agreed.

The eye was first flashed to Trenton where our great Governor, James Stamas, was in conference with a women's delegation from Newark headed by Sadye Tischler. Among those delegates were the socially prominent Selma Raphael, Mary Kozowitz, and the wife of a great mastermind, Henrietta Tosel. In the kitchen were Danato Yannazzo and Bernice Zoppo, supposed to be cooking for the meeting but making eyes at each other.

Focusing the eye on the great metropolis we hit the Metropolitan Opera House while Betty Karpf was delivering one of her famous arias. She was doing a leading role with Myron Snyder singing the male lead. Backstage, Tommy Zito and Vincent Carnevale boasted that they could do just as well. And started out to sing "She'll be 'Carmen' 'round the Mountain When She Comes," when the official bouncer, Harold Mandell, threw them out.

Now back to the other side of the theatrical world. John Andrews was kibitzing with the girls backstage at the Dickman's Burlesque, especially with Doris Brady. Out on the stage were the beautifiers of the Brohawn follies, notably Rose Corry, Beatrice Sherman, Edna Zimmer and Ann De Domenico.

We chanced to get a glimpse at a highway scene where Harry Koltman was speeding to work, late just as in the olden school days. He stopped, however, to pick up a hitchhiker, John Hanek, and they reminisced on bygone days.

Going up on the boardwalk of Coney Island we saw a special attraction which we suspected to be of interest to us. We cheated the barker out front, Joe Kairis, by not having to pay, and saw the largest and smallest men in the world inside, Oscar Englander and our class president, William Short. By the way, that name surely fits him. At another corner we saw Andy Di Giacomo, who featured by making things disappear but having known him in school we put two and two together and attributed it to the fact that we all have to make a living. Then, alas, the motor became overworked and the picture faded. Oh, well!

S P O R T S

Football

Another season has passed. Our gridiron machine, skillfully maneuvered by Coaches Gannon and Fleischman, rolled through an unexpected and successful season. We played some of the greatest teams in the state, yet we held them to close finishes. Following is a list of the teams and the scores:

Central 0—27 West Side
Central 20—0 East Side
Central 19—0 Weequahic
Central 13—0 South Side
Central 6—6 Barringer
Central 6—13 Belleville
Central 0—0 Kearny

A chief weakness lay in the end positions, where at first it was rather hard to fill these important gaps. Mandel, a veteran from last year, held one side, while Richardson and McLaughlin alternated at the opposite end. At tackle, the positions were excellent occupied by burly Joe Frieri and Tuck, a sturdy linesman. Mush Ostinato and Captain Pat Mirando guarded through excessively. The center passes were well thrown by Bob Miller, a stellar backbone of the line. In short, the line was one of the city's best; a combine of veterans and a steady, consistent charger.

The backfield was headed by Micky Rospond, a shifty thruple-threat man, in addition to being a great broken field runner. A newly trained warrior was Pronelewitz, who soon threw with unerring accuracy. D'Adezzio aided the backfield greatly by his defensive playing and through his place kicks. Godetsky played fullback and soon became a veritable battering ram to the opposing lines. Our substitutes were a coach's prayer. Many played as good a game as the first stringers. The outstanding ones were Cibelli, Steffins, and Richardson, linesmen; Chaimovich, Cameron, Hanos, and Bravakis, backs.

Nick Ciangio.

X-Country

In order to uphold the school's sports standards and to keep in accordance with the gridiron successes, the cross-country team proved to be the best in Central's existence. Due to an untimely P. M. schedule, coach Bauers could not attend the practice sessions, but gave strict and minute orders to the captain, Bob Hanlon. Thus an excellent hill and daling tractor was welded together.

The first team to feel the might of the harriers was West Side. Unable to check the onslaught, they submitted to the tune of 19 to 36. Then various dual meets were held with two such powerful teams, one of them a state championship team for eight years, Kearny and Passaic, who bowed by the scores, respectively, 20 to 35, and 19 to 36.

The team rose to its greatest height when it captured the State Championship and the Dana College Invitation meets. In addition to these laurels, they also captured the City Championship meet, ousting Barringer, an old winner. Considerable trophies commemorate this wonderful train of events. In the National Meet, in which teams from all over the country and Canada participated, Central gained ninth place, and received another beautiful trophy. No individual stars prevailed, but the best harriers by far were Captain Bob Hanlon, Vince Carnevale, and Arthur Hodapp. The following are members of the varsity squad: Robert Hanlon, Vincent Carnevale, Arthur Hodapp, Fred Scott, Peter Lardiere, Robert Clairfield, Philip Boyle, Charles Walters, and Joseph Cocuzzo.

Nick Ciangio.

Swimming

The recently mild waters of the Morris Avenue Pool are rapidly changing into raging torrents not unlike thundering cataracts. The cause for this change is the swimming team's sturdy legs and thrashing arms. A stiff schedule is a great stimulator to the hidden power within those muscles. Captain Bill Miller and his assistant, John Nahirney, are expected to lead the team through a successful season. The prospective members for the team are: R. Miller, F. Poulton, F. Kunze, J. Altounian, J. Bartolio, J. Broadbent, M. Ostinato, W. Sharr, F. Shuljmann, H. Sobalewski, W. Bojurki, G. Mendheim, E. Van Popering, H. Venhusiv, A. Surchio.

The schedule follows:

January

10. East Side at Wilson Avenue
14. Arts High at Morris Avenue
20. Kearny at Kearny Avenue
27. Montclair at Montclair Y. M. C. A.

February

3. East Side at Morris Avenue
7. Columbia at Columbia
11. Columbia at Morris Avenue
14. Kearny at Morris Avenue
21. West Side at Morris Avenue
26. Arts High at Morris Avenue
28. Bloomfield at Morris Avenue

March

7. State Championship Meet at Rutgers
13. City Championship Meet at Y. M. H. A.
17. West Side Meet at Morris Avenue
27. Asbury Park at Asbury Park

POETRY

The Wind

Yes, I have seen the wind. It came one wild
November night and woke me from my bed;
It seemed to scorn the quiet and the mild
And threw upon the ground the last gold-red
Leaf that hung with trembling hair upon the tree.
Yes, I have seen the wind. It mocked and cried,
Glowered and blustered, raining scorn on me;
And once, when rushing through the trees, it sighed.

Yes, I have seen the wind, and heard it, too,
And wondered at its anger and its scorn.
When loved Apollo came in his pale blue,
He saw Wind's crime, and seeing hid to mourn;
For when Wind shouted just before the dawn
He knocked our pear-tree down upon the lawn.

The Dim Future

Oblivious of all he strode earth,
Eagerly, with marked impatience,
His steps upon the hills of life
Were meant to dominate the world . . .

He trod onward, hesitatingly,
Longing to clutch at some tangible object
Along the way.
Once he lunged forward
And found that the very earth betrayed him.

I Met Love Dancing

I met Love dancing on a distant hill,
She was so gay and I was very still.
The Sun was angered by her flowing hair
Which gathered all his gold. No matter where
I went—valley, ocean, flowered rill—
I saw her. Oh, I could not drink my fill
Of Love. Her dancing feet were white and bare.
Though I called her she did not seem to care,
But ever danced upon that hill so high.
She did not hear my laugh, my smile, my sigh,
I left her dancing and went home to fret,
But, oh, I can't forget her dancing yet.
Later I searched for her but did not cry
When she was gone. Love did not pass me by.

Child's Query

The same God who made the day and the sun,
Silver rain, thunder, hoary frost, made me,
The light of the moon when the day is done,
Brown earth, and twisting rivers and the sea;
The stars that twinkle through the night's skies
He made.

The day was made for light, the night to rest,
To cool hot earth was made the quiet shade.
Why were lilies made, the robin's crimson breast?

The tree was made for shade, the wind to cool;
(Why was sorrow created, grey tears, mirth?)
Did You lend Your love to a silver pool
Lest we tire, foolish ones, of the earth?
You made grass like emeralds, and the sea,
Stars to brighten night—why did You make me?

PIVOTICKLES

Mr. Goldsmith: "You may recite on gas or chloroform."

Stephen Jacob: "May I take ether?"

Teacher: "Your recitation reminds me of Quebec."

Pupil: "How is that?"

Teacher: "Built on a bluff."

"I think I'll open up an office when I graduate."

"I'll probably turn out to be a janitor myself."

Customer: "What would you give me for a bad cold?"

Jack Runyon (druggist): "Nothing; I don't want your old cold."

"Is he self-centered?"

"Self-centered? Why, that guy thinks 'Hail, hail, the gang's all here' is a solo."

Court: "Have you anything to offer the court?"

Prisoner: "I had two dollars but the Senior class took that away."

"I know a fellow who is so narrow-minded that he can look through a keyhole with both eyes."

"Aw, that's nothing. I know a man that's so stingy that if he knew his wife was dreaming about a quarter he'd wake her up and ask for it."

"That's nothing. There's a man who is so stingy that he is afraid to eat in the sunshine for fear that his shadow might want a bite."

Then there's the Scotchman who told his wife creepy stories to make her teeth chatter so he wouldn't have to buy his baby a rattle.

"Scientists say that mosquitoes weep!"

"So what? Didn't you ever hear a moth ball?"

Jack Runyon: "I took the telephone operator to the races the other day and lost."

Nick Ciangio: "Well, what has the telephone operator got to do with your losing your money?"

Jack: "She pulled the wrong plug!"

Teacher: "How many days are contained in each month?"

Spiro Poules:

"Thirty days hath September,
All the rest I can't remember,
The calendar hangs upon the wall,
So why bother me with this at all?"

We Seniors would like to know:

1. Who bottled Eli Whitney's Cotton Gin?
2. Who won the Industrial Revolution?
3. Why do they whip cream?

Lillian Halperin: "I suppose you're on the football team?"

Bernie Zinman: "Well, yes. I do the aerial work."

Lillian Halperin: "What's that?"

Bernie: "Well, I blow up the balls."

Mr. Rowan: "What is the strongest poison?"

John Hanek: "An aeroplane!"

Mr. Rowan: "How is that?"

Hanek: "One drop and you're dead!"

Judge: "What trade do you follow?"
 Max Dickman: "I'm a locksmith, your honor."
 Judge: "A locksmith? Well, what were you doing when the policeman entered the room?"
 Max: "Making a bolt for the door, your honor!"

Some folks smile in the daytime,
 Some folks smile in the dawn,
 But the man worth while is the man who can smile
 When his two front teeth are gone.

Elmer: "Met a beautiful girl this summer in the West Indies."
 Oscar: "Jamaica?"
 Elmer: "Not quite."

Technical Club

The purpose of the Central High Technical Club is to further the technical knowledge of its members. Interesting trips are taken to inspect manufacturing plants where the application of such knowledge may be studied.

The club at present has a membership of thirty and is under the leadership of: President, Frederick Henry; Vice-President, Chester Bradley; Secretary, William Rux, and Treasurer, Clifford Bender.

Organized with the school's opening in 1912, the Technical Club, started by Mr. Murray and still led by him, has been always in the foreground in club activities due to his tireless efforts and the interest in technical matters.

Things We Will Not Forget—

First, the many romances among us, including: Oscar Englander and Selma Raphael; Frances Herzig and Frances Herzig; Sadye Tischler and Mae West; Sid Loewenthal and his memorable performance in "Adam and Eve"; the lonely manner in which Sylvia collected dues (?); the physique of "Mush" Ostinato; the times (*) Dr. Smith played popular music on the organ; the amiability of Rose Corry; the petulence of "Ivy" Andrews; the consternation about 4A Pivot pictures; the basement luncheonette; dancing lessons betwixt the lads and lassies; locker hum-drums; the ever-smiling face of Helen Mancuso; the power of Mandel; morning assemblies; senior speeches; oh, I can go on endlessly and I know we're going to miss them.
